

Any attempt to have the national do not call rules take precedence over the state enacted ones is insane. Why do telemarketers think that people that have signed up will want their call? Their attempt to change the rules will upset and alienate even more consumers. But I guess if they throw enough money at lawmakers, anything is possible.